THE TREATIES ORDERED REPORTED TO SENATE

STEP IN PUSHING TREATIES THROUGH THE SENATE ACCOMPLISHED

TREATY AMONG OTHERS, WITH ITS RESERVATIONS.
NAVAL
MARINE REPORTED

Three Treaties Up
Are Passed
Unanimously.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 25.—The step in pushing the treaties through the United States Senate was accomplished today when the foreign relations committee, meeting behind closed doors, ordered three of the treaties reported to the Senate to be passed.

The four-powered Pacific naval treaty, the Anglo-Japanese alliance, with the Braddage compromise reservation and the five-powered naval treaty, with the United States, France, Italy and Japan, were passed unanimously.

The compromise reservation to the naval treaty agreed upon by President Harding and Senator Brandegee, was also passed.

The original Brandegee reservation to the naval treaty, which was defeated by a vote of 10 to 3, was also passed.

A motion by Senator Pomerene to strike from the Harding-Brandegee reservation adopted the words "in alliance" was defeated by a vote of 10 to 3.

A new substitute offered by Pomerene for the Harding-Brandegee reservation was defeated by a vote of 10 to 3.

Three Democratic committee members, Hitchcock, of Nebraska, Swann, of Virginia and Pittman, of Nevada, were absent and not recorded.

No move was made by Senator Johnson, to press for a vote on his reservation intended to stipulate that "rights" were involved by the Pacific pact.

Goli, Borah, and Johnson, announced that they would vote against the treaties.

MAY FORCE VOTE ON YAP TREATY

WASHINGTON, Feb. 25.—By starting a filibuster against ratification of the Yap treaty in the Senate today, Senator France, "irreconcilable," openly threatened to upset Senator Lodge's plan to hold the Senate in continuous session in the hope of forcing a final vote on the pact by tonight.

MUSKETRY FIRE AT ARLINGTON ECHOES LAST SAD RITES

LAST TRIBUTE OF OFFICIAL
WASHINGTON PAID TO DEAD AIRMEN.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 25.—The sharp rattle of musketry fire echoed over the Virginia hills along the Potomac today in salute to the dead of the Roma disaster who were laid to final rest in Arlington National cemetery.

Official Washington paid tribute to the dead airmen through Major General Hunter St. Patrick, chief of the air service, who led the procession of mourners that trailed slowly up the low hills, from the Potomac wharves to Arlington.

The bodies interred today were those of Major Walter H. Vautsmeier, Captain Dale Mabry, Master Sergeant James Murray and Staff Sergeant Lee M. Harris.

Special military escorts were assigned to each of the families of the dead flyers and almost the entire officer personnel of Bolling Field marched beside the caissons. The bodies were borne to this city by the night boat from Newport News, arriving at dawn.

A military guard stood all night vigil over each of the bodies. Major Oscar Westover, chief of the lighter-than-air service, was honorary guard to the body of Major Vautsmeier; Lieut. B. T. Bert, a survivor of the disaster, acted as honorary guard to Capt. Mabry, commander of the Roma; Lieut. J. A. Smith, a member of the Roma crew, but who was not aboard at the time of its fatal crash, acted as honorary guard to Master Sergeant Murray; Murray was a major during the war and was entitled to commissioned escort.

Sergeant John Gabriel, also of the Roma crew but who was not aboard the vessel on its last journey, acted as escort of honor to the body of Staff Sergeant Harris.

The military burial was simple and touching. The bodies were lowered to their graves in the order of their rank, the escorts standing with bowed heads around the square. Military chaplains read the services and four times a peal of rifle fire rang out over the half-lit field. As each coffin was interred, "taps" was sounded by a bugler.

TWO KILLED IN THE ARCADIA FIELD IN THE LAST TWO DAYS

ARCADIA, Feb. 25.—The death of Sergeant Robert Washburn, of Lansing, Mich., who fell 3,000 feet while attempting a parachute drop from an airplane at Carlstrom Field yesterday, is the second fatality at the field this week. It was learned today.

Frank Addison, a commercial flyer, was killed and Wayne Maynard, a pilot, was injured in the crash of a plane Thursday when it fell 600 feet.

CENTRALIZE ERECTION
MEMORIALS IN FRANCE

WASHINGTON, Feb. 25.—President Harding today asked Congress to enact legislation creating an American battle monument commission to centralize erection of memorials in Europe commemorating services of the American doughboys.

Many Perished in This Mass of Tangled Steel

Derricks were requisitioned by army rescue parties to lift the forward end of the giant ship, Roma, so the search for bodies would be unhampered. The huge steel framework was smashed and bent by the explosion, imprisoning many victims in that part of the wreckage pictured here.

REPUBLICANS WILL NOT ACCEPT SALES TAX PLAN FOR BONUS

TO ASK PRESIDENT FOR IN-STRUCTIONS IN HARD PROBLEM.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 25.—Republicans of the House ways and means committee were prepared today to tell President Harding that they could not accept his recommendation for a sales tax to pay the soldiers' bonus and to ask further instructions.

It is their hope that the president will retire from the position of "no sales tax—no bonus," and will give his approval to the passage of a bonus bill as a charge against the treasury to be paid through economies effected in the army and navy and in other government departments.

Having tentatively rejected every suggested tax plan for the bonus, the majority of the ways and means committee ceased work today to observe the effect of such action on their House colleagues.

The abandonment of direct taxation as a means of raising revenue contemplated that the compensation must be paid from treasury receipts and under existing taxes left over from ordinary expenditures saved by cutting appropriations or from extraordinary revenues such as interest payment on the foreign indebtedness to the United States.

There were few members of Congress today who declared in favor of delaying the bonus legislation beyond the present session of Congress. Chairman Fordney, of the ways and means committee, and Representative Frear, Republican of Wisconsin, chief opponent of any form of sales tax, were equally insistent that the long delayed bonus bill be passed by the House during the present session.

While members of the ways and means committee did not take final action on the recommendation of the subcommittee turning down the sales tax, it was stated that the heavy majority in the committee against taxes made the acceptance of the subcommittee's report virtually certain.

The next meeting of the committee is scheduled for Tuesday, and in the meantime the committee members hope that word may come from President Harding that will help to clear up the muddle in which they find themselves.

Although the president has insisted that the bonus bill must carry its own method of raising the necessary funds, it is the hope of Republican leaders who are opposed to various suggested forms of direct taxation that the executive can be induced to agree not to veto a bonus bill without revenue features. The president's sanction of such a bill is desired by the ways and means committee before it presents the legislation to the House.

It was to have opened March 3.

ACTRESS IS INVOLVED IN FIELD STORY

OFFICERS MIGHT GO TO MICHIGAN
TO QUESTION MAN

DETROIT, Mich., Feb. 25.—A movie actress of the Hollywood colony not only was implicated in the murder of William Desmond Taylor, film director, but actually gave a signal to waiting gunmen that Taylor was alone and could be killed safely, according to the story told by Harry M. Fields to authorities in the county jail today.

He said that the actress hired him and three others, including a Chinaman, a woman and a gunman, of Los Angeles to kill Taylor, paying them $1,000 each.

The actress went to Taylor's bungalow, Fields declared, and he and the others waited in a machine nearby. She appeared shortly afterward and waved a bag of candy as a signal that Taylor was alone.

The Chinaman and other gunmen then entered and shot Taylor, while Fields and the woman remained in the machine, he said.

Officers May Go To Detroit

LOS ANGELES, Feb. 25.—United States district attorney here today will set aside the story told in Detroit by Harry M. Fields, of the slaying of William Desmond Taylor, film director, officers probably will go to the Michigan city to interrogate him.

While the slaying of Taylor, which continued running down, clues furnished by Fields and checking on his statements, the district attorney was pursuing another line of investigation.

One Detroit woman, who is believed to have been in contact with Taylor, was taken into custody and is being held in a Detroit jail.

When the line of inquiry led to Detroit, a report reached here that there was a motion picture actress in a room in San Francisco, the night Taylor was slain, was not divulged.

It is understood that Detroit Attorney General Wood has been advised that the story that a woman was mixed up in the Taylor murder largely as a result of false information to him by a Michigan United States Attorney.

The federal official said of Taylor, who he said had been in Detroit, "I don't know where he is now."

ENGINES OF ROMA WERE RUNNING AT TIME OF ACCIDENT

TRAGEDY MAY HAVE BEEN AVERTED IF SUCH WAS NOT THE CASE.

LANGLEY FIELD, Va., Feb. 25.—The army board inquiring into the Roma disaster has established that the two forward engines were running when the airship crashed. It was learned today. Had these engines been "cut out" as Lieut. B. T. Bert, the pilot, signalled, the accident might have been avoided, it was stated.

The Roma at the time was "lighter-than-air" and could have risen by its buoyancy" despite the broken rudder.

The fact that the Roma was "buoyant" during the flight was definitely established. The board now is attempting to determine why the "cut out the engines" order was not obeyed.

All the men who were handling these engines were killed in the accident.

"We have definitely determined that the forward engines were running," said Lieut. Col. Arthur G. Fisher, commanding officer at the field.

It is possible that the sudden nose dive may have thrown the forward engine crew out of their position, but for some reason they either did not receive the signal to stop their engines, or else were unable to carry out the order.

The Roma, we learned through survivors, was actually lighter than air at the time of the crash. In other words, its buoyancy was greater than the force of gravity. If the forward engines had not been running, the crash probably could have been averted."

The investigation thus far has shown that the ship was in perfect condition when it took the air. The board has heard a series of witnesses, including officers and men who inspected the vessel, and all testimony showed that the ship-shaped envelope was in perfect condition.

The motor were in the rear and the rear in good order. This phase of the probe was instituted because of a number of letters made public by relatives of the crew, claiming that the ship was a death trap.

The report of the board, it was indicated, will not be completed until next week.

HARDING'S PLANS FOR NORTHERN TRIP HAZY

WASHINGTON, Feb. 25.—President Harding's plans for a three-months vacation and Alaska trip were somewhat hazy today, an informed source of the White House said.

OPERATORS WILL MEET THE MINERS

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., Feb. 25.—After announcing that a committee of four had been appointed to meet representatives of the miners in New York City on March 15, for a discussion of wages, the members of the anthracite association suddenly adjourned their sessions here this afternoon.

IS ALABAMA POWER CO. CONTROLLED BY FOREIGN INTERESTS

HOUSE COMMITTEE WILL ATTEMPT TO FIND AN ANSWER.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 25.—Members of the House military affairs committee determined today to find out definitely whether the Alabama Power company, which is combating Henry Ford's bid for Muscle Shoals, Alabama, is controlled by foreign or domestic interests.

Thomas W. Martin, president of the company, will be asked to give the committee this information when hearings on the Ford offer resume Monday. Martin has told the committee that sixty-three percent of the company's securities are owned in the United States, but that 35 percent of stock is owned in Canada and European countries.

The committee marked time today but determined that consideration of the Ford offer for the purchase and lease of the government water power project will be concluded next week.

A poll of the committee today indicated that it will not join the senate agriculture committee which is also considering the efforts of the government to dispose of Muscle Shoals, in an inspection trip to the Southern project.

Litigation in the courts which may tie up development of the Shoals project for a period of years, loomed stronger today with the testimony of Martin, of the Alabama Power company, partly before the committee. Representatives of the Southern corporation plan in the time allotted them for opposition to the Ford bid, to lay the foundation for instituting court action to compel the government to live up to contractual provisions alleged to give the company preferential right to purchase the property.

CASHIER OF BANK OF FELLSMERE IS DEAD OF INJURIES

ST. AUGUSTINE, Feb. 25.—Ben D. Atkinson, cashier of the Bank of Fellsmere, who fell under a train at Seaboard Thursday at midnight, died of his injuries today.

The widow took the body to Fellsmere for burial.

It appears that Atkinson was starting on a business trip to Jacksonville and had arrived in his auto just as the train was leaving. In attempting to board the moving express train from the hind side, he evidently missed his step and was dragged under the moving wheels for about ten yards, one shoe being lodged fast in the wheels.

A station telegrapher reporting for duty at midnight, heard his moans and immediately called the local surgeon, Dr. D. B. Ross, who accompanied the injured man to St. Augustine.

WILMINGTON MAN MAKES
OFFER TO LEASE 540ALS

WASHINGTON, Feb. 25.—The offer of Frederick E. Engstrom, a shipbuilder of Wilmington, N. C., for leasing of the Muscle Shoals, Ala., project was received by the Senate today from Secretary of War Weeks.

The secretary's report which made no suggestion for its acceptance, was referred to the senate committee on agriculture. The committee also estimated liabilities of $25,000 and recommended the offer of Henry Ford, sets of $3,000.

NO MORE UP, BUT WILL

WASHINGTON, Feb. 25.—A timely warning was given today to the Republican Congressmen against going far in reducing the size of the American navy.

The warning, which was given in the name of a young man conveyed by President Harding to the members of the House naval affairs committee, of a White House spokesman.

Members of the committee were cautioned to the House by the president, and there was a "full endorsement of the navy" to the cutting and shrinking of it to be done in the American navy.

No figure was set, but the program was agreed upon by the committee, which was to be a "comprehensive" one.

Some congressmen believe that a navy of 60,000 men is strong enough for the next year, and are urging appropriations accordingly.

Secretary of the Navy Danahy believes that 50,000 men should be the absolute minimum, and that there is of course reflected by the high ranking officers of the service. Many of them consider it too low.

President Harding, it is understood, informed members of the committee today that he would be virtually reluctant to see the navy go below 50,000, a compromise figure.

The naval committee itself is divided. There are "big navy" men and "little navy" men, both on the committee, as well as a number who stand between the two extremes.

Today's conference was more in the nature of a "test together" meeting to see where matters stand. It is understood that the president undertook the conference at the request of Secretary of the Navy Danahy.

The president advised the committee members that the 13 battleships, authorized by the arms conference, should by all means be kept aloft and ready for duty. It would be bad policy, he believes, to reduce the navy to the extent of not keeping these ships fit.

President Harding's suggestions were essentially of a compromise variety. He advised members of the committee to authorize the immediate conversion of the battle cruisers now building into airplane carriers. Ten million dollars have already been spent on each of the ships, one of which is building at Four Rivers, Mass., and the other at Newport News.

The president endorsed the idea of cutting down the size of the naval classes at Annapolis, by 10 percent, and he informed members of the committee he thought it would be unwise to turn the present graduating class back into civil life without commissions. A has been suggested in Congress.

The president also urged that there be a reduction in the legal authorized strength of the navy now at 146,000. Keep the authorized strength as it is, he advised, in order to retain the necessary officer personnel, which would be necessary for speedy enlistment and training duty in time of emergency. The reduction from the authorized strength could be effected, he advised, without much friction.

ANOTHER BROKERAGE FIRM OF NEW YORK FAILS

NEW YORK, Feb. 25.—Involuntary petition in bankruptcy was filed in the United States district court by creditors against the brokerage firm of Rietz and Sullivan. The petition estimated liabilities of $25,000 and recommended the offer of Henry Ford, sets of $3,000.

Marrow-Parkhurst Open House a Most Successful Event

A host of friends and the general public thronged the beautiful sales room and service station of the Marrow-Parkhurst Motor company Friday afternoon and evening to shower congratulations upon the members of that successful firm and view the Oldsmobile models on display.

D. H. Marrow, A. J. Parkhurst and R. E. Niven were royally hospitable entertainers, presenting lady visitors with flowers, the men with best brands of cigars, and serving all with refreshments. A pleasing program of musical numbers was played throughout the afternoon and evening.

The salesroom on Main street was most attractively decorated and the various types of Oldsmobiles were arranged in striking display. Visitors were at once impressed with the atmosphere of progress and enterprise evidenced on all sides through an inspection of the entire ground floor occupied by the Marrow-Parkhurst Motor company.

Not only in construction and appointments but in the care and attention given to every detail are the Marrow-Parkhurst headquarters classed among the finest sites and service stations in the state. With a 50-foot frontage on Main street running north 138 feet and facing also 50 feet on Live Oak street, the firm has ample room and facilities to handle its rapidly expanding business and to render the best of service to all Oldsmobile owners and drivers.

Everything one expects to find in the best garages in the large cities is to be found here, a completely equipped repair shop, paint shop, welding department, free air service, car laundry, accessories, tires, etc. Nothing has been overlooked.

The open house of the Marrow-Parkhurst Motor company held Friday also marked the first presentation to the public of the peninsula's finest business block. This imposing structure of brick and tile, three stories high, is clear indication of the great commercial future in store for Daytona Beach. It paves the way for other men of foresight and confidence in the community's permanent prosperity, to erect other buildings on the main streets which will be a credit to the peninsula and which will be in keeping with the community's steady growth.

When the corner section of the block is completed there will be a three-story building fronting 55 feet on Main street and 138 feet on Live Oak street. The entire upper floors will contain over 70 hotel rooms, with a beautiful lobby on the street floor and a roof garden on top of the building.

The plumbing in the present building was installed by V. C. Grant, and the lighting fixtures and wiring done by J. S. Crook & Son. The painting and decorating was handled by Jack H. Anderson, the plastering by Frank E. DeMott and the Fred Emerick Tile company of Orlando installed the cut-tile work in the new block. The water heat has come from a branch in Daytona and is located at 418 Magnolia avenue.

The two upper floors are nearing completion, the plastering being practically finished. A pleasing outlook is obtained from the rooms on the upper floors, especially on the third. It is certain that one of the most fascinating spots on the entire peninsula will be the roof of the three-story corner structure when completed. There Nature in all her glory can be seen in all directions.

Mr. and Mrs. W. G. Kerns arrived Friday afternoon and are the guests of Mr. and Mrs. Smith R. Young at their lovely home, 112 Halifax avenue, Daytona Beach. Mr. Kerns is very enthusiastic golf player and is counting on some very interesting games while here.

MYRE AT THE CLAMS FOR

NEW YORK, Feb. 24.—Myre, the otherworldly Jimmy Duff, of Oakland, Calif., either could not or would not answer the bell for the eighth round against Lew Tendler, Philadelphia lightweight, last night. Whether his action was prompted by physical inability or lack of inclination for the business ahead was, and still is, a mooted question.

Myrie claimed he had been hit by Tendler late in the seventh round. His joint manager, Dan MacKettick, seconded the motion with audible emphasis and much waving of the arms.

Kid McParland, the referee, denied it. So, quite naturally, did Tendler; likewise Phil Glassman, his manager. The club physician, Dr. Fred Walger, straddled the issue, as William H. Hart might straddle a Pinto pony.

"It appeared to me as though Gold might have been fouled," the doctor said after the bout. "I said that he was fouled about the abdomen and it is not for me to determine the cause."

The writer examined Gold in the dressing room after the bout, and although it is not his wish or intention to take issue with a competent referee, or a qualified medical man, the following is offered for what it is worth:

Gold quite obviously was bruised about the lower abdomen. Mr. Kettick in his role of lecturer, touched the spot with his fingers by way of illustration, and the boy, although lying with his eyes closed, winced and squirmed away.

A bruise was there, right enough. How it got there is not for us to determine. Gold might have reached up with a careless foot and kicked himself, or it is just possible that one of Tendler's gloves had something to do with it. Certainly, Lew let a few dirty that were dangerously low.

However, the point is raised as to whether Gold, even if hit low, was hurt badly enough to prohibit a continuance of the bout to its scheduled limit of twelve rounds. There is no particular reason why Gold should have wanted to take a run out. He had made a surprisingly good showing, staggering Tendler from time to time with long-range rights that seldom failed to reach Tendler's head.

Gold also uncovered a left stab was lightning fast, albeit light and his defense at long range was beautiful to behold. To see him pick off Tendler's leads was to watch the work of a fine class for men. Morning worship at 11:00 A. M. The pastor will speak on the topic: "Cutting the Bible to Pieces." This will be a most interesting message to all. The usual sermonette for the boys and girls at the morning worship. The devotional hour of the B. Y. P. U. is held at 6:30 p. m. Both the Senior and Junior B. Y. P. U. are welcome all young people to their ranks. At the evening service at 7:30 the pastor will speak upon the topic: "Losing Sight of the Great in Attaining the Common Place." There will be special music all day. Prof. Lawrence, the Cello Artist, will have part in the musical service at both services. You will always find a genuine welcome awaiting you at this church of the open door and the spirit of hospitality.

Program of Cello numbers at the services of the First Baptist church for Sunday:

Morning—Prelude, "The Lost Chord," by Sullivan. Offertory, "Among the Roses," by Lake.

Evening—Prelude, "Scotch Pastorale," by Langey. Offertory, "Evening Song," by Thallon. Miss Saunders will sing at both services specially attractive numbers.

and their intention to fight the Pacific pact on the floor of the senate, but it was predicted by administration leaders that but three other Republican votes would be cast against its ratification, those of France, of Maryland, LaFollette, of Wisconsin, and Norris, of Nebraska.

There is a possibility of Moses, of New Hampshire, also voting against it. With but five Republican votes against the Pacific pact, twenty-eight of the 36 Democratic senators would have to oppose it to provide the 33 votes necessary to prevent its ratification.

Senator Underwood, the Democratic leader, would only have to command eight Democratic votes besides his own to insure ratification. Underwood has already given President Harding definite assurance, it is understood that he will be able to swing ample Democratic votes to make ratification certain not only of the Pacific pact, but of all the armament conference pacts.

Senator Lodge expressed himself as being "highly satisfied" with the situation now that he had succeeded in getting the Pacific pact out of committee. He admitted that there would probably be considerable debate on it, but remarked smiling, "all is well that ends well."

Following the action of the Senate Foreign Relations committee to day the Senate resumed consideration of the separate Yap treaty between the United States and Japan which Lodge hopes to have ratified before today's session ends.

Lodge planned to hold the senate in session tonight, if necessary, to finally dispose of the treaty, and to prepare the way for consideration of the Pacific pact next week.

It is the administration plan to press for ratification of the Pacific pact ahead of the naval and other conference treaties.

ITALIAN CABINET FORMED AT LAST BY DEPUTY FACTA

ROME, Feb. 25.—Deputy Facta today succeeded in forming a new cabinet, with himself as Premier and Minister of Interior. SENATE RESENTS HARVEY CALLING HARDING NAMES

FINE SPIRITS MUST HAVE BEEN CAUSE, SAY SOME SENATORS.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 25.—Col. George Harvey, American ambassador to Great Britain, was again "put on the spot" today in the United States Senate.

Following Senator Reed's statement of yesterday, in which he declared he would "almost be willing to repeal the prohibition laws" to get Harvey back, Senator Pat Harrison, Democrat, of Mississippi, attacked Harvey today for comparing President Harding to an elephant.

Harrison, reading from a dictionary, solemnly assured the Senate that an elephant was noted for its "solid ivory" and carried "wood in its head."

"I resent this vile characterization of my president," said Harrison, while the galleries snickered. "I resent his being called an elephant."

"Ambassador Harvey in his speech last Monday described our president as 'bearing striking resemblance to the elephant,' which symbolizes his political party," said Harrison, reading from Harvey's speech. "I could see the president as a ringmaster driving the elephant but Harvey calls him the elephant."

"I'll read you the definition of an elephant: 'There are two existing species and several extinct—its tusks furnish most of the ivory. Its head is very large. It is the only animal that has wood in its head. It—no, I better leave that out.'"

Harrison took exception also to Harvey's characterization of Senator Lodge as a "dashing knight of old."

"That dashing description, of course, is applicable to Senator Lodge at times," said Harrison. "We recall how he dashes madly from one position to another on questions of public concern."

Harrison also touched on Harvey's "description of Lodge as a statesman, 'erudite in cloistered aloofness.'"

"Harvey calls the Republican leader who drafted the four-power pact an 'erudite statesman,'" Senator Harrison continued. "I recall that the four-power pact was written in twenty lines. But the Republican leader, when members on his own side announced their opposition to this pact, wrote out another treaty explaining this pact. This explanation, by the way, had more words in it than the original pact. I wonder whether Harvey was thinking of that when he called Lodge an 'erudite statesman.'"

Harvey's characterization of Senator Underwood, Democrat, of Alabama, the minority leader, as a "blend of the spirit of the Old South and the high spirit of the New South," brought a response from Senator Norris, Republican, of Nebraska.

"Harvey must have partaken of the fine blend to which he referred," Norris said.

"Yes," replied Harrison, "he was probably inspired by the fine spirits which he used in his description of Senator Underwood."

Senator Lodge then urged the Republicans to enjoin Harvey to "stop talking."

"It can't be done," Norris interjected. "You can't stop a man talking when he is sent from a nation having an eighteenth amendment, to another country where there is no such prohibitory law."

HARDING AT WORK ON SUBSIDY PLAN FOR MARINE SHIPS

WASHINGTON, Feb. 25.—President Harding today worked upon the message which he will deliver to congress next week in support of the administration's plan for a government subsidy to bolster up the American merchant marine.

Albert D. Lasker, chairman of the United States shipping board, conferred with the President at the White House this morning with regard to certain features of the proposed "re-mercantization" plan.

Details of the subsidy have not been made public, but it is understood that the plan which will be laid before congress by the President will provide for both direct and indirect aid for American shippers.

The President has not decided when he will address the house and senate, but hopes to formally present the subsidy plan on Monday.

LANDRU PROTESTS INNOCENCE OF MURDERING TEN WOMEN AS HE IS BEHEADED EARLY TODAY

French "Bluebeard" Took With Him to His Grave Secret of Disappearance of Women to Whom He Made Love—Facts Guiltless as Coolly as He Took Trial—Head Chopped Off Before Many of the Spectators Knew It.

VERSAILLES, France, Feb. 25.—In the raw, misty dawn, Henri Landru, France's arch-murderer, was beheaded on the guillotine before the gate of St. Pierre prison today. He had been found guilty on November 30, of the murder of ten women, whom he had made love to and offered marriage, and a boy—the son of one of his female victims.

Landru protested his innocence to the very end. "I will be brave," were the last words he uttered just before the knife fell.

It was eight minutes after six o'clock when Landru's head rolled from the guillotine. He carried with him into the Great Beyond his secret of the missing women whom he was convicted of killing for their savings.

A crowd of morbidly curious persons, including numerous women, had gathered before the guillotine before daybreak.

Promptly at six o'clock the bugler in the neighboring barracks began to blow the reveille—a tune known to the American display by the words, "I can't get no satisfaction."

The sharp notes of the bugle officially proclaimed it daybreak. The crowd stirred expectantly, knowing that Landru would soon be led forth to his doom.

Landru had been awake in the prison since four o'clock. When he was led before the gate he stared into the crowd, but if he was looking for his real wife and his children, he was disappointed. They were not present.

At fifteen after five, a little group of prison officials entered Landru's cell and told him to prepare for the end. The condemned man's hands were tied behind his back and his feet were loosely held, permitting him to shuffle down the stairs from the third cell row.

Once Landru reached the execution room and his assistants, he was leading him to the guillotine.

"Please don't hold my arms tight," the doomed man spoke cheerfully and pleasantly.

As is customary in France Landru signed the prison register on his way out.

To expedite the work of the executioner a high power light was burning in the prison court, flooding the guillotine with its rays. Landru stopped short for a moment and his body threw a heavy shadow across the foot of the death scaffold.

Landru was pale, but stood erect and appeared cool. His beard had been shaved off under the chin so that his hair would not interfere with the knife. For perhaps ten seconds Landru stood still and silent, facing the guillotine.

While he hesitated, the chief executioner and his assistants forced Landru forward bending his head upon the "sliding board." The instant the doomed man's head slid into the fatal aperture, the knife dropped and Landru's head rolled into a basket partly filled with sawdust. The whole thing took less than three minutes time.

The alert assistants stood beside the guillotine with outstretched hands; hardly had the murderer's head fallen to the decapitation has ket than they had grabbed it. Hardly had the echoes of the knife's third drop away before the body had been placed in a coffin with the head joined to the neck. The coffin had stood in a closed wagon beside the guillotine.

The men in the crowd bowed their heads during the decapitation, and a little group of cavalrymen who were present to preserve order, saluted with their sabres.

The execution was described as "unusually clean." Only a few drops of blood stained the sawdust.

The chief executioner made a brief speech to the spectators, apologizing to them and to the public press—because there had been about half a second's delay. This was caused, he said, by a poor adjustment of the head.

Death should have been a almost instantaneous, the executioner said. The knife should have fallen so quickly, he said, that the spectators could hardly see the head drop into the basket.

Later the body was taken to the Versailles cemetery for burial.

Landru's last words were uttered as his body was being forced upon the execution board. He apparently spoke to himself for the words were muttered.

The scaffold was erected in Rue St. Pierre in front of the jail.

The guillotine structure was 12 feet high and the knife, a triangular affair, a foot high, weighed 160 pounds.

Landru's lawyer was present, and as the condemned man was led through the prison yard, he turned to the attorney and asked to be allowed to speak with his divorced wife if she were present.

The whole affair lost some of its gruesome character through the speed with which it was enacted. The crowd could hardly believe it was all over when Landru's body was being put in the basket. Even after the knife fell, the men and women remained open-mouthed and staring. It was necessary for soldiers to force some of the people back who stood between the guillotine and the wagon bearing the coffin. Everything had been arranged for speed.

A number of persons had come to Versailles from Paris and as the wagon rumbled away towards the cemetery, they made a break for the railway station to get back home.

For a better view some of the spectators had brought step ladders to be seen. Others climbed up into trees.

The Rue St. Pierre was a scene of activity all night long with spectators arriving in carriages, motor cars and on bicycles. The street was constantly lighted up with the rays of headlights. Some of the spectators carried blankets, camp chairs and thermos bottles with hot coffee or cold wine.

Just before the ceremony the soldiers took charge and massed the spectators into a roughly formed hollow square. Some of the women were dressed in evening clothes and appeared to have left the ball room for the execution.

Men in evening clothes who had spent the night carousing in the Montmartre district of Paris, escorted women to the scene.

Famous authors and actresses were in the front rank of the spectators. One Montmartre cabaret singer and dancer chartered a sightseeing bus to make the trip to Versailles.

In the darkness of early morning, the public prosecutor and the police prefect of the department Seine Et Oise, wearing tri-colored sashes, the judge who presided at Landru's trial, the police commissioner, a Roman Catholic priest, and Mero Giffery, Landru's

HOSPITAL AFFAIRS OF INTEREST

HELEN B. HAPPY

Miss Helen B. Happy of Boston is having a glorious time at Daytona Beach. She says, "Swim like me and you'll be happy, too." So, boys, swim like Helen B. Happy!

Meeting of the board of trustees Friday evening was well attended, and enthusiastic action was taken to clear the decks for immediate action in financing of the hospital. Plans as worked out are to be clearly, concisely and definitely presented to the public. The meeting resulted in one very convenient and attractive, and it is hoped to secure early acceptance, especially for the memorial part of the plan. The physicians who attended the meeting in a body as guests of the board had first held a meeting of their own earlier in the evening and organized their work in extremely practical and helpful manner. Report of their meeting appears elsewhere in this issue.

A group of Catholic Women's auxiliary members called at headquarters Friday afternoon and discussed certain details of the plans that have been evolved for financing of the hospital.

Friday was marked by a large number of personal conferences between Cornelius S. Leeder and winter residents in Seabreeze and Daytona Beach. There was also a similar conference Friday afternoon at Ormond. This work is a continuation of the effort pursued for the past several weeks which will result in much that is helpful to the hospital.
